Published evidence suggests that strategic planning builds a unifying vision, forces an in-depth examination of priorities, and provides a means to track overall organizational progress. The following strategic plan is thus a detailed outline of goals and objectives established by the North Dakota Department of Health and Human Services (NDHHS) Health Equity Unit (HEU). These aims follow the SMART framework for specific, measurable, achievable, realistic and time-bound initiatives. The timeline for this plan spans from 2020-2024, with the acknowledgment that some deadlines may be pushed back due to the COVID-19 pandemic. As a living document, this plan and associated target dates may be modified to reflect community needs. This plan serves as an ongoing, actionable guide highlighting the NDHHS' commitment to achieving health equity for North Dakota residents of all backgrounds.

Mission

The NDHHS's mission is to improve the length and quality of life for all North Dakotans.

Health equity is the attainment of the highest level of health for all people. The NDHHS’ HEU works to understand and reduce health disparities among all North Dakotans. The primary goal is to reduce rates of disease by providing opportunities for interventions and improving access to health care. This will ensure all North Dakotans receive the highest quality of health care that meets their needs.

Origins and Rationale

As part of the Department's Strategic Plan, improving health equity is an overarching goal embedded in all state initiatives. Considerations outlining health disparities between population groups are primary drivers of the department's plan. The HEU Strategic Plan is thus an outcome of the overall Department's Strategic Plan and includes corresponding goals and objectives to reduce inequities in sectors such as obesity, injury and access to care.

The Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB) also outlines specific standards and measures for all health departments. These standards range from investigation and education to evidence-based practices and governance. To ensure alignment with PHAB standards and domains, the following goals and activities include a label identifying the addressed PHAB domain. Thorough descriptions of each PHAB standard and domain are available on the organization's website.

Evidence-based Approaches to Strategic Planning

The NDHHS heavily relies on data-driven processes and community input to identify and address populations that have greater risks for poorer health outcomes. These approaches underscore the department's evidence-based approach to health equity.
Collaborations with the NDHHS Health Statistics & Performance (HSP) section are paramount when using new or existing data to detect gaps and inequities. The NDHHS continues to use performance management and quality improvement to ensure data measures are meeting targets. Therefore, the HEU's first goal is to improve the overall data collection of various population groups. Strategies to do so include targeted data collection through the North Dakota State Health and Equity Assessment and partnership with the HSP to incorporate equity questions into all databases. The NDHHS continually measures our progress toward these goals through weekly team trackers, one for the HEU Strategic Plan (see Appendix A) and another for the COVID-19 Strategic Plan.

The COVID-19 Strategic Plan also includes a Statewide COVID-19 Inequities section that provides monthly updates to racial/ethnic population data. These data points include hospitalization, fatality rates and age-specific COVID-19 death rates, all of which assist in identifying disparities. The NDHHS further uses community input and assessments to note factors that may encourage or discourage good health. Examples of community input include stakeholder meetings with tribes, community advisory boards and grassroots partners like ESHARA—a collaborative program that addresses barriers for new Americans.

Incorporating Healthy People 2030 Objectives

Every ten years since 1980, the US implements national health objectives under the umbrella term Healthy People (HP). A consortium of national and state organizations under U.S. Surgeon General leadership develops HP objectives, focusing on country-wide areas of health improvement. These health improvement areas include integrating medical care with preventive services, health promotion or education, personal and community health care and increasing access to said services. The first of these programs, HP 1990, provided objectives for reducing premature deaths and preserving older adults’ independence.

HP 2030 is essential to the HEU’s mission to achieve health equity. HP 2030 has aims aligned with multiple social determinants of health that the HEU actively works toward realizing. These objectives include identifying funding opportunities, implementing health improvement plans and incorporating evidence-based practices to address these priorities. Please note the following identifier for HEU goals that align with HP 2030 initiatives:

More information about the referenced HP 2030 objective is available on the respective page’s footnote.
The North Dakota HEU Strategic Plan addresses the specific concerns expressed by underserved or marginalized North Dakotan populations. The HEU also recognizes that several individuals experience intersectionality, or the intersection of multiple underserved classes like homelessness and living with a disability.
